Biography

Once we sensed God's call to missions, we decided to confirm the call by spending five months in Cameroon learning what it means to be medical missionaries. We served alongside a couple who was working at a rural clinic that predominantly served the Fulani people. We helped at the clinic in a variety of ways and asked lots of questions about missions. By the end of our experience, we felt that God was indeed calling us to pursue medical missions long-term.

We returned home, and Eli began medical school just a couple of months later. While Eli was in medical school, Krista had the opportunity to attend grad school and earned an MA in intercultural studies from Wheaton College (Illinois). We graduated at the same time and then moved to Duluth, Minnesota, where Eli had a residency in family medicine. After Eli completed his residency, we prepared to head to Tenwek Hospital in Kenya.

Eli serves on the faculty of Kabarak University's Family Medicine Residency Program; Tenwek Hospital is a training site for the residency program.

Krista cares for our boys and is involved with several ministries around the hospital community.
